MALBEC

Brought to Mendoza by Michele Aimé Pouget from Bordeaux in 1853, Malbec has now become Argentina's jewel.

Towards the end of the 19th Century, disease destroyed much of France's vineyards, resulting in Argentina becoming the only country to have original Malbec vines of French heritage.

In recent years Malbec has become the fastest growing grape variety and Argentina has the largest Malbec acreage of any country in the world.

Its beauty lies in its ease of drinking, soft, voluptuous tannins, beautiful perfume and its affinity with beef... and chocolate.
